

Elephants: Gentle Giants

Elephants are the largest land animals on Earth and are known for their intelligence and strong social bonds.

They live in groups called herds, usually led by a matriarch, which is the oldest female.

Elephants use their trunks for many purposes, including feeding, drinking, and communication.

They are herbivores and primarily eat grasses, fruits, and bark.

Elephants are found in Africa and Asia, with African elephants generally being larger than Asian elephants.